

MYTH:

Unmetabolized folic acid in the blood is dangerous.

FACT:

Folic acid is present in the blood after consuming fortified foods, but studies find no link between unmetabolized folic acid and adverse health effects, including no increased risk of adenomas (precancerous growths).